The Night of the Storm

Daniel lives with his family on a small moshav in the north of Israel. His grandfather, Yosef, has a big field of sunflowers and an old barn with twenty goats. Every afternoon after school, Daniel helps him. He feeds the goats, and Grandpa tells him stories about the moshav fifty years ago.

Last winter, there was a terrible storm. The rain didn't stop for hours. At midnight, Daniel heard a loud noise from the barn. He looked out of the window. The barn door was open, and the goats were in the field!

Daniel woke up his father. They put on their raincoats, took two flashlights and ran outside. It wasn't easy, because the ground was muddy and the goats were frightened. After an hour, they found nineteen goats. But Bella, the youngest goat, wasn't there.

In the morning, the storm was over. Daniel walked to the sunflower field, and there, under an old tractor, was Bella. She was wet and dirty, but she was fine. Grandpa hugged Daniel. "Now you have your own story to tell," he said.
